"text" und "copy" gehören jeweils zum Fragewort "which" (welche/r, welches), sie sind nicht das Subjekt in ihrem jeweiligen Satz. Ob Sie "do" oder "does" setzen müssen, hängt aber vom Subjekt ab!!

Fragen Sie also in Zweifelsfällen "wer oder was?", um herauszufinden, was das Subjekt ist und um zwischen "do" und "does" korrekt unterscheiden zu können.

B Eine von vielen möglichen Lösungen könnte so aussehen:

Yesterday I arrived at the office at nine. First I opened the safe and copied some documents, then I locked them in the safe again. After that I typed some letters. Many people phoned me in the morning. At noon my colleague fetched a snack for me. It tasted good. We finished our snacks and talked about our work. In the afternoon it started to rain. I missed my bus and walked home in the rain.

Eine von vielen möglichen Lösungen:

If my girlfriend comes next weekend, we will go to the cinema on Saturday afternoon and watch a movie. After that we will go home and cook dinner. We like to cook and we will make spaghetti and a green salad. My friend Fred will come after dinner, and we will go to a pub and have a beer and talk about old times. On Sunday we won't get up before ten, and we will have breakfast with my neighbours. They have got a dog, so after breakfast we will all walk into the park with their dog if it does not rain. In the late afternoon my girlfriend will go home again, and I will go to bed early.
